

WERE SOLEMN AND SIMPLE SERVICES

Funeral Services Over Body of the Illustrious Dead.

EULOGY OF RECTOR

All Along the Route of the Cortège to Take the Train For Washington Thousands of Hats Were Taken Off.

New York, Jan. 30.—An imposing military pageant passing across Brooklyn bridge, brief, simple services at St. Thomas Episcopal church in Fifth avenue and an escort across the North river ferry to Jersey City, where the body was placed on a train to be taken to Washington for interment in the national cemetery at Arlington, marked the funeral in this city Sunday of Brigadier General Joseph Wheeler, cavalry leader of the Confederacy, and later one of the most prominent figures among the generals of the Spanish-American war. The body of the dead soldier was wrapped in the flag under which he had served with almost equal valor and distinction—the stars and bars of the Confederate States and the stars and stripes. Veterans of the southern and northern armies mingled together in paying tribute to Gen. Wheeler with the younger veterans of the Cuban and Philippine campaigns of 1898 and 1899. The route of the funeral cortège was lined with great crowds, most of whom stood with bare heads as the procession passed.

A riderless horse, with boots reversed in the stirrups and a cavalry sword dangling from the saddle, was led just behind the caisson.

The church edifice was thronged. Seats had been reserved for the Southern society, the Confederate Veterans' association, the Society of the War of 1812, several other organizations and several friends of the family. Reservations also had been made for the honorary pallbearers, the staff of Gen. Frederick D. Grant and the officers of the escort. The altar of the church was almost hidden beneath the floral offerings, one among them, a great wreath, sent by President Roosevelt.

The solemn burial ritual of the Episcopal church was conducted by Rev. Ernest Stiles, rector of St. Thomas' church, assisted by Rev. Morgan Dix, rector of Trinity church. The clergy met the body at the door and led the way to the caisson.

After the caisson had been placed on the pedestal the full vested choir of St. Thomas entered the church singing as a procession hymn, "Lead, Kindly Light."

Dr. Stiles, in an address, said: "This is one of the great occasions of our lives. For we are met to honor the memory of a rare man. I do not speak to you of him principally as a citizen, statesman or soldier, for the mere name of a man is not enough to inspire any noble deed. It is of the man I think this hour. Was he entitled to be called great? It is not difficult for you to decide."

"He was distinguished by courage without rashness; by wisdom without pride; by gentleness without weakness; by patience without heedlessness; and by justice which always leaned toward mercy. He honored man, he trusted man, and to every man he was ready to give his time, his substance, his heart."

"The north gives him unstinted honor; the south, even in her grief is proud of her ever loyal son. Cuba, for whose freedom he fought, feels our grief across the waves, and the whole world pauses for a moment today to declare that this was indeed a man."

"Let there be little of sadness here. We are not commemorating a defeat; it is the victory of life, the triumph of a noble character."

DIED FOR DUTY.

He Was Last Brigade Chaplain of the Confederate Army.

Towson, Md., Jan. 30.—Rev. Matthew O'Keefe, pastor of the Roman Catholic church of the Immaculate Conception, died Sunday of pneumonia, contracted while responding to calls to attend the sick. He was seventy-eight years of age, and a native of Waterford, Ireland.

The oldest priest in the diocese, Father O'Keefe was the last surviving brigade chaplain of the Confederate army, having been chaplain of Mahone's brigade of the Army of Northern Virginia, and a close personal friend of General Robert E. Lee and Hon. Jefferson Davis.

Father O'Keefe made himself famous through the south by his work during the outbreak of yellow fever at Norfolk and Portsmouth in 1855 and 1856 when the red ribbon of the Legion of Honor by his attendance upon the officers and crew of a fever-stricken French frigate that put into Hampton Roads. He is said to have died nearly penniless, having devoted his large fortune to church works.

DENMARK'S RULER DEAD.

"Father-in-law of Europe," Passes Away Monday Afternoon.

Copenhagen, Jan. 30.—King Christian is dead. He died at 3:20 o'clock Monday afternoon.

The king passed away quietly, surrounded by the crown princess and their children and also the dowager empress of Russia. News of his majesty's death spread with great rapidity and signs of the greatest grief are to be seen everywhere.

Denmark's ruler, who was born in 1818, enjoyed the distinction of being the oldest monarch in Europe. He was also termed the "father-in-law of Europe," owing to the fact that he was related by marriage with several courts, his sons and daughters marrying into royal families. One daughter, Alexandra, is queen of England. Another, Marie, was empress of Russia, her son being the present czar. King George of Greece is a son, as is also the new king of Norway.

THE NEGRO WAS SAVED BY MOTHER

Begged That Her Child's Ravisher Be Not Lynched.

HER HUSBAND INSISTS

Mr. Roberts Finally Yields to the Headings of His Wife and the Mob Did Not Burn Self-Confessed Wretch.

Chicago, Jan. 30.—Following a criminal assault on a ten-year-old white girl by a negro, who was captured by a mob, the assailant's fate was in doubt while the parents of the girl were pleading for and against burning him at the stake, says a dispatch to the Tribune from Washington, Ga.

Mrs. Roberts, weeping, begged that the law be allowed to take its course, and her husband continued to incite the mob to lynch the negro. She then appealed to her husband to aid her in preventing the lynching. She said that to put the assailant to death within hearing of her girl would be almost as cruel to the child as the negro's act.

Roberts, after some hesitation, came to his wife's side and joined his entreaties with her's. Their united efforts convinced the mob that to lynch the negro would add to the wrong already done the child, and it was agreed to turn the assailant over to the sheriff.

Mamie Roberts was attacked Saturday as she was returning from a neighbor's home by Rich Anderson, a negro, employed by her father. As soon as the child reached home with the story of the assault, she began to weep.

The negro was captured Sunday in a swamp and taken to Roberts' home, where it was planned to have him identified by the child and then lynched. When the mob arrived at the Roberts home the negro confessed his guilt.

BURGLARY CHARGED.

Miss Leath Says That Will Brown Did Not Grab Her Dress.

Tyler, Tex., Jan. 30.—Will Brown, the negro arrested after a reported attempt at criminal assault upon Miss Mary Leath, five miles from town on Saturday last, was carried before the young lady and identified. After much pressure Brown finally confessed, but stated that burglary was his own intent. Miss Leath corrects exaggerated reports formerly credited by saying that the negro did not grab her dress, but did no more than move toward her, doubtless in making his escape, which frightened her. Only a burglary charge has been preferred against Brown.

SHOOK EARTH FOR MILES

Resembled Volcanic Disturbances and Two Craters Formed.

Humble, Tex., Jan. 30.—At 1 o'clock Monday morning in the oil fields well pluggings caused a volcanic disturbance that shook the earth for miles. Two craters were formed, each 600 feet in diameter. Docks and machinery were swallowed up. The eruptions hurled rock, mud and lava 1,000 feet high, covering as it fell an extensive territory. Intense excitement prevailed in that section. The eruptions were accompanied by sheets of fire, due to gas becoming ignited. Mud and lava bubbled up and ran in rivulets in all directions.

EUST TO DUST.

With Full Military Honors Remains of General Wheeler Laid to Rest.

Washington, Jan. 30.—With full military honors the body of the late General Joseph Wheeler, a veteran of two wars, former representative in congress from Alabama and retired officer in the United States army, was laid to rest Monday, in the national cemetery at Arlington. The spot selected for the final repose of his remains lies on a grassy slope in front of and to the right of the historic Lee mansion, and is regarded as one of the most beautiful sites in the home of the soldier dead, as it overlooks the national capital, across the Potomac.

Honors were paid by the blue and the gray. Veterans of the two conflicts in which General Wheeler distinguished himself as a gallant soldier and dashing cavalry leader, personal friends, representatives of the two branches of congress and citizens join with the nation's military in paying tribute to the dead general.

The funeral cortege was a most imposing one. All honors due a major general were paid. Although but a brigadier general in the regular army, General Wheeler held the rank of major general of volunteers and was honored accordingly by the government he served.

A guard of honor, selected from the ranks of the Spanish war veterans here, met the body on its arrival from Brooklyn Sunday night and escorted it to St. John's Episcopal church. The guard remained in charge of the caisson during the night and was relieved Monday afternoon by a regular army guard.

From 10 a. m. to 2 p. m. the body lay in state and hosts of people viewed it.

At 2 p. m. the burial ritual of the Episcopal church was read by Rev. Dr. Ernest Stiles of St. Thomas' Episcopal church, New York, who accompanied the body to Washington, and Rev. John Cotton Smith, rector of St. John's church.

President Roosevelt and cabinet, Senators Morgan and Pettus and ex-Senator Pugh of Alabama, were among the many prominent persons present.

At the conclusion of the church services the solemn procession started to the cemetery. First in line were United States troops detailed by the war department, who acted as the military escort.

In the absence of any infantry organization in the immediate vicinity of Washington, a battalion of engineers from Washington barracks represented that branch of the service. A squadron of cavalry from Fort Meyer and the cavalry band and battery of field artillery, also from Fort Meyer, completed the escort. With the cavalry was led a riderless horse, denoting that one of the country's soldiers had been lost from the ranks. The body was borne on a caisson by four horses and the caisson was draped with the stars and stripes. Following the caisson came veteran organizations as follows:

United Confederate Veterans' association of Washington, under command of John T. Callaghan, Grand Army of the Republic, commanded by Corporal James Tanner, commander-in-chief; Spanish war veterans, commanded by Department Commander Lewis; company "A," Wheeler's Confederate cavalry, of Atlanta, Ga., and army and navy unions. There were followed by citizens. General Grant was in command.

Shortly after leaving the church the cortege turned into Pennsylvania avenue and proceeded along that broad thoroughfare westward to the sound of muffled drums and a solemn dirge to Georgetown. There the Potomac river was crossed by the aqueduct bridge into Virginia. The route to Arlington cemetery lies past Fort Meyer. As the head of the column reached the point opposite that post cannons boomed, sounding the major general's salute of thirteen guns, at regular intervals.

The impressive military service and final services of the church marked the ceremonies at the cemetery. The cavalry dismounted at the gates and proceeded within the silent city of the dead on foot. Troops formed in line at the grave and stood at present arms. The veterans' associations also took position around the grave. With the caisson resting just above the grave the committal services of the Episcopal church were conducted by Rev. Dr. Stiles. As the caisson was lowered into the ground a squad detailed from the troops fired three volleys over the grave. Taps were then sounded, concluding the ceremonies.
